Moving from JMP Pro to JMP Student Edition

Last Modified on 08/28/2025 10:32 am EDT

JMP Student Edition is available to both students and faculty to install for any Wharton class that requires the use of JMP. This article provides basic instructions on how to download, install, and access JMP.

When you launch JMP Student Edition for the first time you'll need to verify that you have a license (which are free for students and faculty). It will prompt you to enter your email address and then send a verification code. Enter the code and you're all set.

A MyJMP account is required to obtain and verify a JMP license. See the directions below.

Table of Contents

Obtaining a JMP License

1. Navigate to jmp.com/student.
2. Click the Get JMP for free! button.

3. Click the Get started at My JMP button.

Let's get started with Step #1

*Students, instructors, and academic researchers must be currently enrolled at or employed by a degree-granting institution. Academic research is defined as noncommercial work that will be published in a journal, presented at an academic conference, or shared for the public good.

4. Click the Sign Up link in the lower right corner.

5. Enter your First name, Last name, and Wharton email address (<YourPennKey>@wharton.upenn.edu) and click the blue Sign Up button.

6. A verification code will be emailed to the email address you entered (for new and existing accounts a like). Find the code and enter it in the Verification Code field then click Verify.

7. Click the I Accept radio button and then Continue.

8. For new accounts you'll need to fill in your Affiliation (Instructor), and then the details of one of the courses you're taking/teaching.
School/University Name should be: The Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania. Enter your address details, check the I Accept box and then click the blue Next button.
